For the first time, Sag Harbor, N.Y., has welcomed the Galerie House of Art and Design, a show house that combines two creative disciplines under one roof. Embodying Galerie magazine’s brand goal to “live artfully,” the immersive experience brings the pages of the magazine to life.

To deck out the 12,500-sq.-ft. home – a classic, shingle-style estate located on 6 acres in the Hamptons – participating designers were selected from across the country. They collaborated with art galleries to curate the spaces, while several artists created site-specific installations.

“Sag Harbor is such a special place in the Hamptons, and we’re eager to bring together this ‘house of dreams’ where art and design intersect in such a fresh way,” said designer and design chair Nicole Fuller. “It’s like nothing we’ve ever seen or experienced before. Our A-list lineup of artists, galleries, designers and artisans will transform this house into something new. It’s uncharted territory, and for creatives, they’re challenged in a way that gives them total freedom to have new ideas and be inspired in different ways.”

Proceeds from the show house benefit the construction of Stony Brook Southampton Hospital’s East Hampton Emergency Department. The facility will benefit communities in the easternmost reaches of Long Island, making emergency care faster than the hour or more it can take to reach the existing Stony Brook Southampton Hospital from some areas.
